re: Adjustall Non Backflo Fitting

Dear Sir:

We are herewith enclosing revised draft of application with regard to the above subject, which has been revised in accordance with suggestions made by Messrs. Russell.

We are still somewhat confused as to which joints are slip joints and which joints are ground joints. In your letter of May 9 you suggest that all of the references to slip joints be changed to "ground joints". However, in the blue print which we have the joints referred to in the patent drawing as 13, 16 and 17 are designated as slip joint connections and the joints indicated in the patent drawing as 20 are designated as ground joint connections. In the specification we have referred to all of the joints as ground joints. Is this correct?

R.E. Russell
If you will furnish us with the name of the inventor or inventors we shall prepare the formal papers so that they may be signed by the inventor or inventors and we shall also prepare an assignment whereby the title to the application will be assigned to your company.

We are herewith enclosing the revised application together with a photostat copy of the revised drawing. The drawing is still in the pencil stage and can be very easily corrected if you believe that such is desirable. Kindly make any changes in the specification and claims which you believe are necessary. If the specification, as prepared, appears to be satisfactory kindly advise us, at the same time giving us the name of the inventor or inventors and we will send the formal papers for his or their signatures. The specification and claims which we are sending to you can then be returned to us with the signed formal papers.

Very truly yours,

Lee J. Gary
